else's, fate lent them a hand.

The morning dawned with a cold northeaster that increased in violence until at noon (the meeting time was 1 P.M.) the rain and wind were a raging gale. The politicians at Rochester Center were pleased as Punch. Surely no one, or at best only a very few, would jog up the muddy road from Mattapoisett in the teeth of the driving rain. And both the Moderator (Deacon Amittai Hammond) and the Town Clerk (Rogers L. Barstow) were from Mattapoisett; very probably they wouldn't come. There might not even be a meeting; or if there were, the Rochester Center voters would soon settle things to their hearts' content.

But again they were fooled. Rain or no rain, there was a big turn-out from Mattapoisett. Since very few voters showed up from Sippican and North Rochester, the Mattapoisett voters were able, by two votes, to pass Capt. John Atsatt's motion that the meeting be adjourned to Rev. Thomas Robbins Meeting House on Wednesday, April 26--only two days later. Then everybody plodded home, horse and foot, in the rain.

So in the present Grange Hall, then the Congregational Church, the fifth round--and the second town meeting ever held in Mattapoi-

Consequently, only 240 voters showed, almost all from the village. They conducted the usual town business; and then, evidently just to prove they could do so if they wished, they voted to adjourn the meeting to July 10 in the same building.

This was the end of the fireworks for this year. Very few voters, even from Mattapoisett, put in an appearance; and when they did, there was no business to transact except to elect Levi Handy "wood surveyor for the Mattapoisett Quarter." So they voted to "dissolve" the meeting.

Thus came to an end the longest town meeting (four months) in the town's history. And as the days and weeks wore on, over and above all the temporary arguments, it gradually

Dear friends,

The mortuary profession is efficiently organized.

For example, our affiliations make it possible for us to cooperate with other funeral directors in any portion of the United States. In cases where burial is desired in some other city, we can make all necessary arrangements for the care of the body upon its arrival.

The value of such a service is obvious.

Respectfully,
